Having read through a number of the posts I've seen regarding Windows 8.1, I must say that it isn't very excellent. The reason is that this new Windows version is combined with the Windows team's updated version of the Explorer, which is simply very plain and uninspiring. They even sacrificed yet another shortcut on the start button. Another feature that doesn't make much sense is the fact that Windows 8.1 is designed to handle multiple monitors for the first time. What happened to the old settings? Ok, I'm a Windows Phone enthusiast, but my PC laptop is running Windows 7. Recently, I've bought this netbook for my use. It's an ASUS U50E, which is just a smaller variant of the U50. I've tested it myself, and it's actually very good! 1) Start: This is where you start the application. You can configure which account to start with, and you can switch between multiple accounts with the symbol of a plus on your main account. 2) Preferences: This window offers a look at your connection to the Internet. This window may take some time to appear, because of the process that occurs. 3) Go: This window appears when you click on a contact in your phone. It will open and show the selected contact's details. All sorts of information can be found in this window. It includes phone number and address, as well as the contact's age and gender. An important aspect of the

You can use it for your personal convenience, or simply use it for unsociable purposes like hiding any unwanted programs that might slow your system down. This is a list of all the programs associated with it. You can use this folder to uninstall or change the program.

1. Change the theme colors of Windows 10 By default, Windows 10 Lock screen and Start Screen are dark. It is possible to change the theme to light or dark. Go to Settings. Open Themes. Select your chosen theme and apply it.
