It is considered the industry standard for 2D drafting and design in the architecture, construction, interior design, and manufacturing industries. AutoCAD does a lot of stuff for you, and it is easy to get lost in the menu. However, the basic work that Autodesk wants you to do—drawing lines, circles, and surfaces on your computer screen—is remarkably easy. Pek, is because the order to fold the shirts was missed and the box with the shirts was forgotten. But I'm not sure what kind of point you're trying to make? That as a parent, it's not right to deprive your child of things? That they should have to ask? If they ask, you answer, "No." But if they don't ask, what's the harm? If the parents don't want to let their child play with things they've collected, what harm is done? Do you actually feel that you should have a say over what your child does? What about what your child does? Does that mean you can't do anything without it being wrong? If it's no longer in your house, what harm is it doing? And you say kids make things they don't want to play with, and you don't want to make them work – why? I'm so tired of this "kids don't want to be productive" nonsense. I'm tired of having to teach my son how to make things, because I refuse to buy him all these toys that end up in the garbage. I can't imagine how sad you must be to have such a child. Don't get me wrong, I have two children that get whatever they want, but I also know what they want, and I work with them to come up with a plan.
