US says Ottawa overstated toll of 'heroin crisis' The U.S. recently ordered that more than $1 million in U.S. drug dollars intended for combating the heroin crisis be returned to Washington OTTAWA (Reuters) - The U.S. recently ordered that more than $1 million in U.S. drug dollars intended for combating the heroin crisis be returned to Washington, because Ottawa had overstated the toll the drugs are having on their own territory. Ottawa rejected a request to return $1.3 million in so-called "Drug Eradication Budget Funds" to the U.S. Embassy in Ottawa in 2011, arguing the funds should be used to combat drug cartels in the United States. Ottawa says it has been more successful in fighting drug cartels that once
