Platelet-derived growth factor regulates gene expression in human aortic smooth muscle cells in vitro. Smooth muscle cell (SMC) proliferation in the aorta is a key event in the pathogenesis of aortic aneurysm formation. Platelet-derived growth factor (PDGF) is an important mitogen for SMCs in vitro and is present in the blood. The aim of this study was to examine the expression of PDGF in human normal aortic SMCs (HNSMCs) in vitro and to investigate the effects of PDGF on the expression of genes that are involved in the regulation of SMC proliferation and migration. Using quantitative reverse transcriptase-polymerase chain reaction, we observed a continuous rise of PDGFA and PDGFB expression in HNSMCs during an 11-day time course. PDGF receptor expression increased in a time-dependent manner after stimulation with PDGF, and both PDGF receptor alpha and beta chains were present in HNSMCs. We also examined the effects of PDGF on the gene expression of SMC differentiation markers. PDGF increased the expression of SM alpha-actin and calponin and the migration-related proteoglycan, collagen I. The effect of PDGF on SMC differentiation is thus comparable to that on proliferation. In conclusion, we found PDGF present in the blood and abundant expression of PDGF receptors and PDGF in HNSMCs. Furthermore, PDGF is an important mitogen for HNSMCs, and PDGF 595f342e71
