Simple applications are meant to be simple to use, but that's not always possible. Be more user-friendly with your app design and it might be a success! The following simple ways to make your app more user-friendly will be highlighted. 1. User-friendly app title It's a very basic thing. However, it is often forgotten. Well-designed app titles are user-friendly in a way that is difficult to forget. 2. Different expectations In some cases, people don't even know what they want. The app description should cover the different expectations from the users and it should make it clear for them what the app can do. 3. Useful buttons For apps with no icon, it's a good idea to include buttons on the screen itself. This is what you get on Xbox games, for example. Useful, short links are the best. They're easy to remember. Look what it takes to achieve it! 4. Create the right atmosphere The app should provide a certain atmosphere in order to be used correctly. Certain sounds are usually used for particular activities. So it's a good idea to create a custom audio file for your app. Keep it simple and elegant! When you've created your app, it's time to promote it on the AppStore! Here are some tips on how to get more installs and downloads. 1. Find the right keywords The App Store is an ecosystem, so the keywords you choose should be relevant. Take into consideration the terms your users use when searching for your app's name. In order to achieve success, it's advisable to know the different ways people search for your app and create your title based on it. 2. Concentrate on the right page You mustn't create a page for your app if you want your app to get installed. It will only bring down your promotion efforts. That's why it's important to choose the right page. For example, you can't create a page for the b7e8fdf5c8
