Top Stories Sir David Attenborough said the natural world should be more than just a tourist attraction for much of the world, telling students of the University of Leicester that humanity and wildlife are connected. The presenter said humanity has the power to destroy the planet and that "intelligent life must have a role in the universe" and taught a new generation of students at the University, which has its roots in the city of Leicester. Talking about his new film, "Blue Planet 2", he said: "We should be getting that from life beyond Earth. Ask HN: How to build a company with fluent communication with customers/suppliers? - zachwilliam How do you build a successful company with fluent communication with both customers and suppliers? ===== greenyoda _" So what's the problem here? Why don't they understand each other? Maybe they're not talking about the same thing. Maybe they're not trying to be understood. Maybe the translation is wrong."_ (From reading bad corporate translations) If the problem is a broken translation, then it might be useful to figure out what the real meaning of the message is in the original language. But, if the customer and the supplier are both using broken translation systems, then you need to teach both of them to use a common language, and start communicating with the local people that way. (ETA: To make sure you're clear about what I'm saying, I'd like to add that the problem isn't that the customer is using a broken translation system. The problem is that the customer has broken communication in the first place. You need to fix their broken communication so that they can communicate properly with you. As I wrote above, figure out what they're really trying to say and communicate with them in the same way. In some cases, figuring out what they really want to say is a lot more difficult than a broken translation system.) ~~~ zachwilliam The problem is the translation is the same for both parties. So while the customer is trying to convey what they want, it's not like the supplier can be getting the message. ~~~ greenyoda _" The problem is the translation is the same for both parties. So while the customer is trying to convey what they want, it

Q: What's the difference between Primary Key and Unique Index I know MySQL is the only DBMS supporting Constraint for unique index. In the Document, it mentioned the difference between Primary Key and unique index. In a relational database, a primary key constraint uniquely identifies a row in a table. A primary key is a restriction on what data is allowed for the table. It is not possible to have two rows in the table that have the same primary key value. ... Unique index. What I don't understand is: why is a primary key is also a constraint, but unique index is not a constraint? And also I'm confused about the part Unique index. Is it right to say that unique index is just a kind of index, to make it unique? A: If you mean unique constraint in MySQL, it is not supported by any other RDBMS either.

It is MySQL only. In SQL Server, you can achieve it via unique index constraint. (please refer to this question) A: The difference between Primary Key and Unique Index is: Primary key: It must be unique for all rows in the table. Unique index: It is the key that must be unique for all rows in the table. A lithographic apparatus is a machine that applies a desired pattern onto a substrate, usually onto a target portion of the substrate. A lithographic apparatus can be used, for example, in the manufacture of integrated circuits (ICs). In that instance, a patterning device, which is alternatively referred to as a mask or a reticle, may be used to generate a circuit pattern to be formed on an individual layer of the IC. This pattern can be transferred onto a target portion (e.g. comprising part of, one, or several dies) on a substrate (e.g. a silicon wafer). Transfer of the pattern is typically via imaging onto a layer of radiation-sensitive material (resist) provided on the substrate. In general, a single substrate will contain a network of adjacent target portions that are successively patterned. Known lithographic apparatus include so-called steppers, in which each target portion is irradiated by exposing an entire pattern onto the target portion at once, and so-called scanners, in which each target portion is irradiated by scanning the pattern through a radiation beam in a given direction (the “scanning”-direction
