{3. Interview with the producer of Finden, Shigeru Miyamoto on Monochromia} Firstly I will explain about the developers of Finden. Founded in 1993 by producer and director like Nomura Hirokazu. Also the illustrator of Monster World and creator of the Mario series for Nintendo. Origin of the Finden The basic elements of finding (Finden) were born when I and Nomura Hirokazu first entered the Nagoya Electronics Laboratory. We talked about directly jumping into the next game genre, and later found ourselves "Hmm... a possible finding game on the SNES would be fun!" Character Design This time I would like to introduce Kati, an RN surrounded by many memories. Even though she is one of the smarter girls of Rabbit (Tanya), who hides his feelings from the others. His debut as a character designer is Finding Santa's Death from the game EarthBound. After that, he has also been the main character designer for the Mario games. Along with developing the background character as well, it is his specialty. Development History The history of development is somewhat like moving in three dimensions. First we started out with the sense of making a game that is fun "play or death!" by only changing the control method, and later added the multiplayer. In Tokyo Game Show, the editors from Nintendo Treehouse announced that we started development, and I was shocked. At the same time, the game was shown, and the news spread throughout the world. I had a bit of unease, as if I was playing amongst the big boys. That was Super Mario Bros... {optional questions} Q: What is the most interesting event that have happened to you since the start of Finden? A: To be perfectly candid, this will sound a bit suspicious. However, while we were in the development process, Nintendo of America was striving to make the game be sold in the United States, so a lot of problems and delays came up. I still received money for the game, but it was a very modest amount. Q: Why is it that you do not have problems developing for a living while a lot of SNES developers have to get by, borrowing money from friends etc.? A: I think it stems from the fact that the game made by Nomura Hirokazu is full of fresh air and simple fun. Q: You said you dont have any idea who is going to play Finden, but
