This game is 8bit style RTS. A lot of NES-like armies move on the screen and wage war. This game has a speed button for high-speed play. With 9 speeds up, you can win in 5-10 minutes per stage. Easy operation. Your color is "Red". You can build buildings on red areas. When you build a production-type-building, the building automatically creates armies. Armies advances to a nearest city of enemies. When you build a defensive building, the building automatically atacks enemy's armies. When you occupy all towns, you win. You get Buildings and Special Powers. Various stages are waiting for you!How to fight on the battlefield -1- Over time, you get war funds for the number of your city. Your color is red. You build buildings on the land of a red city using your war funds. When you build a production-type-building, the building automatically creates armies. Armies advances to a nearest city of enemies. When you build a defensive building, the building automatically atacks enemy's armies. Only infantry can occupy cities. When you occupy all cities, you end the stage. Select a map Battle begins with your battlefield selection. If your land is surrounded by enemies, you will be attacked from all sides. If your land is narrow, you can only place a few buildings. Four maps are displayed at random. And you can change it any number of times. As the stage progresses, the game becomes difficult. The number of towns will increase and enemy's initial war funds will increase. Special ability When you win, you can choose one building or special ability. Your choices will increase for each new stage. Ability to acquire war funds. Ability to increase range and HP for defensive buildings. Ability to call bears, monsters and guardians. Bomb : Ability to destroy all enemy units and stop production of enemies for a certain time. Repair : Ability to repair all your buildings and produce your units at once. Meteor : Ability to destroy enemy buildings at random. In order to acquire special ability, game strategy changes. How to fight on the battlefield -2- You should build a defensive building in the place where the enemy units come. You should build a production type building far from the enemy. Let's destroy the towers and fortress with tanks and Self-propelled artilleries.

A Word From The Game's Creators: How excited are we to bring the game we have worked so hard on to its new home on the PlayStation Store? It's an amazing new platform that really opens up new doors for us. Our beautiful new game is totally free for everyone to play and enjoy! We think our fans are going to be absolutely blown away with what we've accomplished. We are dedicated to delivering an amazing, new product that fills a void in the market - and is as fun to play as the fans we have generated over the years on the PS3. We really hope that our fans enjoy what we have brought to PS3 owners so far, and that they will continue to help us shape the game into something truly memorable. We are incredibly fortunate to be working with Lucasfilm - the creative and visionary genius behind the Star Wars saga. The new Lucasfilm games that we have collaborated on are the essence of what we do best - a great narrative experience to enrich any Star Wars fan's experience, but delivered in a fresh new way. Our new PS3 exclusive, Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides, is an extension of this philosophy and our relationship with Lucasfilm. Join our Facebook Fan c9d1549cdd

To start viewing messages, select the forum that you want to visit from the selection below. This is a puzzle game that uses a custom tilemap. The game was designed by Hassei-san (the original creator of GJP) for his own game. He made a game using the sample tilemap data for Pixel Game Maker, but he decided to create it himself because he wanted to make something that he made himself, and not something someone else made. The game was made at around the same time as the tilemap editor. The game also includes a strategy part of how to beat the game. Trying to beat the game without reading the strategy section will leave you lost. The trial version has the tilemap with 12 levels for single-player, and both players have an additional 32 levels for the puzzle. If you experience any troubles, please refer to the information below, or if you don't have anything wrong and your game won't open, please give us your feedback at pixelgm.vsu.ac.jp There are many tiles in the editor. Press [TL] and [TR] buttons to switch them on the map. If you can't understand any of the tutorials in the game, please refer to these tutorials in the list of tutorials by clicking on the button on the bottom-left corner of the editor. The map is designed to be "long" and "narrow", and can fit in the space below the map of almost any game in the editor. Because the tilemap is also designed to fit the space below the map in many games, you can make the editor tilemap have the same tilemap layout as that of the game you're playing with it. In the final game, you have to find a way to get to the end of the level. Usually, you can get there in a very straight line, but sometimes there may be a part of the level where you can't reach the end point without going back and forth. Please refer to the information below when playing the game. GAME BUGS - Tilemaps with many shapes cannot be converted. - Tilemaps with large shapes such as the ones with a height of 3 or 4 tiles, will be cut.

> ers Sun, 02 Aug 2015 08:06:49 -0400Apocalypse Is No Longer Out of Reach Thu, 10 Apr 2015 10:01:48 -0400 I suppose 2 years is a long time in Internet time. But then again, there are some of you who still think the world was supposed to end on September 10, 2012. Maybe that was the wave of the future? No? Creepy abominations? Zombie hunters? Awe, yes, that too, thank you. So anyway, for those who don't remember how quickly things developed this past September, Apocalypto with bring some throwbacks to you! For those less familiar with the TRitical event, let me give some overview: In the post-apocalyptic future, humanity is somewhat agrarian-due to increasingly harsh weather, and has set itself up on a global scale in order to not die out. Since our technology has advanced into the future, the world is NOT in a post-apocalyptic environment, but rather closer to their Silver Ages. After a great transgression by an emerging nation, the current world leaders die in a single blast, and the country's citizens become top-down zombies. The world briefly develops nuclear weapons, but after the effects on the biosphere and humanity become chaotic, the countries begin to eschew nuclear weapons in favor of advanced weapons of mass destruction. The zombies become a deeply influential organization. As the story wraps up, they are poised to conquer the entire world and establish their new order with worldwide nuclear weapons. Since my story does not involve a player-controlled character at all, the world leaders come to the story dead, but this does not stop a confrontation from occurring. For the most part, the characters go into their infinite number of crazy ideas for saving the world. In summary, they are zombies who have become emperors, and their empire takes the literal form of a plane. Characters can claim multiple planes, but can only launch directly into the plane by arcing directly above the planet.

Because there's no good way to get anything off Twitter, these collective amateurs decided to try using Twitter's public APIs to grab every tweet in existence (roughly 40 billion per day) and then set about repurposing them to make them totally puerile. After seeing my tweet at 12:21 pm ET the other day, the group proceeded to achieve the holy grail of online troll/bear/antagonist fantasies and release it as tweet. The best way to appreciate what this bot did is probably by just reading the summary: Now…Some of you are out there wondering why this post is being written if it's just going to be exactly like all the other tweets. The reason why we're writing this rather than the typical multi-thousand word article on how to effectively use the tweet format to express one's self is because, damn, what we've created is awesome. And there's nothing we can do about it. Want to know how to get your own Twitter account hacked and then "borrowed" without anyone realizing? Copy/paste the following string on your browser and
