I have an "old" card that is simple, but gives a boost to your remaining health. The boost reads: You're being given a boost to your remaining health... (your level + your rank + your mana) to (new health). The card is: The Rank means nothing to me. I could be going from 2-3 and the card would work because I would get (2+3+6) to 20.

What does the "your rank" mean? Is it what rank you're currently in battle or your current rank? A: What does the "your rank" mean? The Rank means that you are unable to know what rank you are. Is it what rank you're currently in battle or your current rank? It's your current

We got some images from the client and made a simple query: search: MONSTER OR MONSTER INSPIRATION Now we want to let visitors search by keyword. I assume that this is no different from Google custom search and clicking on the blue button in the image above. Bing has a nice feature here. They use a little icon on the search bar, so you can search by topic: Is there a way to get this icon in the drop down search box. On the Bing web site you get the following error: Sorry, something went wrong While we are unable to retrieve your search from the system, if you can see this message you can try searching via the following links: [Enter] [Enter] As you can see, this does not happen for the Google search. So my question is: how can I get this feature to work? Update: Is there a way to get this icon in the drop down search box? A: You can submit a search from your web browser and it will be treated as a custom search. The results will appear in the Bing search results page. The icon won't show in the drop down. The search URL doesn't include the topic, but is similar to this one:
