This is the first in-game soundtrack I ever compiled. I simply took everything I could find from the game and composed a fantasy soundtrack featuring around twenty instruments including strings, woodwind, electric guitar and even piano. I then added some awesome new pieces by other talented composers around the world. Along the way I added about twenty new songs so now you can enjoy a fresh real-time RPG soundtrack or listen to your favourite tunes during your commute. All tracks on this version are based on the variations of Legolas available in the game, but I added a few extra songs in case you want to play with a different version of him. I make this soundtrack available as a tribute to the game and the community of game composers that created this great experience. Features: - Composed and programmed by me - 25 Tracks - No mediafiles used by direct download - All files are supplied in MP3 format - The "RagTag" directory in your Steam games directory contains all the soundtrack. - All files are supplied individually in the.zip - All tracks available on the cart are also available in a standard mode Keywords: RagTag World of Warcraft Hearthstone Legend of Dragoon Naruto-Shippuden Baldur's Gate World of Warcraft: Cataclysm Katawa Shoujo Baldur's Gate II: The Black Hound Locked Out POTC: Set sail for the final battle - Pirates of the Caribbean Under the Lights - National Geographic The World is Yours - World of Warcraft Space Hulk: Deathwing - Warhammer 40,000 Le Monde - RagTag Ice Age Space Quest Xevious - Tenchu Rock Band - Music created by me Ragnarok Online Might and Magic - Might and Magic Dungeons & Dragons - Ancient Realms Lost Vikings - Ragnarök Pathologic - Rappelz Warhammer - Warhammer Tokimeki Memorial - Soundtrack Pirates of the Caribbean - Pirates of the Caribbean Myst - Myst, TimeSplitters, Uru Live, Fate... What's new:

The is the newest ship operated by the Japanese cruise line, Princess Cruises, which entered service in 2007 and holds a gross tonnage of 30,989. Like the and the Princess deluxe ships, its exterior appearance is distinctively different from other Princess ships. Its hull is white, covered with a unique pattern of black and gold lines. Instead of a white superstructure, she has an all-black one with gold mouldings, which is painted a metallic silver and gives the appearance of an eagle's crown. Her funnel and masts are the same white and black as the rest of the ship, except for her company logo, which is made from black and gold. The ship draws on the design of the Imperial Japanese Navy aircraft carrier and this, along with her notable fuel-efficiency, led her being nicknamed "Godzilla". She has a working complement of around 1,400 and she can accommodate up to 2,400 passengers. Development Despite Princess Cruises having the world's most well-known mascot, the much loved "Tiny", there were still many people who were under the illusion that a full-scale model of the company was in the form of a cruise ship. More than a decade ago, high level executives with Princess Cruises decided that a new image for the company was needed. Taken into consideration was both the fact that some of the company's bigger ships were now having the age-long problem of being able to get up to speed on passengers' utter disapproval, and the fact that Princess was the nation's leading cruise company. This notion became the basis of what would later become the flagship of Princess' fleet, now entering into its 12th year of operation and carrying over 56,000 passengers annually. The development of the new ship began in 2002, beginning with a 20-year study of what the desired characteristics of the new ship would be. In 2000 she was conceived to exceed the 40,000-tonne capacity of the by having a crew complement of 1,600, and her D single funnel was the largest cruise ship to date. In comparison to these ships, the was 1,062 feet (326 m) long and weighed 51,077 tonnes (12.82 million lbs) fully loaded. The first of several proposals for the new ship was the appearance of a Romanov-class battleship with a volcanic appearance, thus the proposed nickname, "Babushka�

We are MSV Team!

We were looking for the best way to provide Active Server Backups, in which we would backup the game files and all the settings. We eventually decided to combine the two ideas into an install that compressed the Active Server to a file and also provided a crack to be activated with winzip and run from the doomcore directory. The patch clears old settings in the game, re-sets the cvars, and patches the new settings.

The ps2 team had a slightly different need for a backup solution and are able to manually back up the game and savegame files, while working on other tasks. Although these files are not compressed, the install script still (to some extent) produces a valid backup.

Therefore I'll provide the fallback install option for the lazer team, who are currently unable to activate the file provided for them.
