Police across the country are dealing with an increasing number of violent crime incidents on the public transport network, and in some cases, passengers are getting dangerously close to commuter rail lines. As Toronto's high rate of youth violence continues, police forces are learning that young passengers tend to be more emboldened. In Victoria, two separate incidents occurred near Ballarat railway lines this week, prompting an investigation from the police. The first happened on Wednesday, when a 14-year-old girl
