This documentary follows Roy as he uses his life story and the inspirational power of music and coaching to help others find their own inner motivation and courage. There is a not-so-gentle thread running through Roy Childs’s life, one that emphasises the fact he has ‘more skin in the game than most’. As a young boy growing up in a single parent family, Roy was not even expected to complete school. Yet he did. Roy excelled in his studies and showed leadership potential, even while still in school. This meant he could avoid national service and won a scholarship to pursue a Life Sciences Degree at Melbourne University. Roy graduated with a Bachelor of Science. He had always wanted to pursue a career in mentoring, and found it at his local church. Childs’s success as a coach speaks for itself, but in this film Roy shares the journey of how he has developed as a coach. And as a result of his own learning, he has been able to pass his knowledge and experiences on to many other people. Roy has had his challenges in life. Many years of play-schooling as a child left him with memories of ‘feeling shut out’. He started to drink when he was 12, and by 15, he had been sent to a juvenile correctional facility and spent four months in juvenile hall. His motivation was to get his life back on track. Today, Roy is the founder of Good Times Inc., a mentoring and education foundation that advocates for young people of African descent. He hopes to create better futures for young people who might not

I'll be posting dailyA cyber attack on the Tasmanian government's Department of Premier and Cabinet put around 500 state public servants "at risk" over the past week. A single IT vulnerability on the DPC's network that allowed an unknown individual to gain remote access and initiate a malicious cyber-attack was discovered on Friday, 10 November. It has since been rectified. "When we discovered this cyber-attack we took immediate action and, as soon as the area of our organisation affected was identified, worked with an outside security expert to ensure it is contained," Minister for Business and Innovation Michael Ferguson said. "Our priority is to keep the whole department working normally and we are working closely with our colleagues to ensure the public are not inconvenienced by this cyber-attack." All the department's work sites were closed for the weekend and a sweep of hardware and software was performed throughout Friday. The virus was not able to access sensitive information, but it was possible the individual had gained unauthorised remote access to

Yes, we have always had the best practices in place, but we are aware that some players are still receiving their free robux in their account by creating a lot of accounts. As a result, we've created the 'spam' tool to help make this process more difficult for spammers. The tool is called the Robux Tagger. The process is simply by linking your own free Robux account to a different account; and upon linking, the bot will scan and report any accounts it finds to the network. If you do not wish to have the bot linked to your free Robux account, simply do not connect any free Robux accounts with your own. When free Robux accounts are linked to other accounts, the accounts cannot transfer out in any way, and thus are transferred 'in'. This means you cannot trade or sell them to other users, but you can simply keep them 'in'. In fact, while you can still transfer a number of accounts from the free Robux to your own Robux, we recommend against doing so. If you do transfer accounts, you will be unable to keep them anymore. We may add or remove a free Robux account from this tool at any time to help us combat abuse of the tool; so be sure to use it regularly. By connecting a free Robux account to another, the account is no longer free; it must use its own resources to keep it moving. However, if you do not wish to have the bot linked to your free Robux account, simply do not connect any free Robux accounts with your own. Yes, you can just use the bot and it should scan for free Robux accounts that are associated with your account. You would then have to remove the Robux from your account by using the "Log in" button, and then enter the Robux you want to keep. If you do not want to keep them, just tell the bot that the specific account should be removed and you will be able to access it again. A Robux tagger will report accounts with multiple Robux accounts that don't belong to the same account. In other words, the account will have accounts that are used as bait. For example, if a user uses a free Robux account to offer for sale. Additionally, there are often Robux accounts that are leaked. They may be real accounts, or (more likely) leaked accounts. The stolen accounts are the ones that are worth
