And what shall I use? If I need something more comprehensive, I will stick with those two. However, if I am planning to use the program for personal uses, I recommend FireShot Pro. A: If you're looking to edit images, you should definitely consider using GIMP, you can get a version that is free as in speech on ubuntuforums.org or on the gimp.org website. There are many tutorials on how to use GIMP, some are easy to follow while others can be a bit tough to get used to. You can google how to use GIMP or even refer to the tutorials. The two features I absolutely adore in GIMP are: The file dialogs. This is the biggest mistake that most people make when using GIMP. If you just want to open, delete or add one or two files or folders, it can be confusing. The file dialogs however, allow you to simply select a folder and then drag and drop your images there. The colour dialog. Once again something that can be a little difficult to get used to, but once you get the hang of it, it's pretty cool. One of the big things that I love using the colour dialog, is that all of my edits are done in a full screen colour picker. I do not have to add a layer or blend mode, change my settings, and then switch back to my image to make my edits. I can simply have GIMP edit it in real time. If you're looking for a more professional product, I'd recommend taking a look at the GIMPShop. Click to see the GIMPShop demo: It's basically just a website, but it offers a user-friendly interface to work with GIMP. You can either install it from wordpress.org, add to cPanel, or navigate to their download page. If you're looking for a GUI that is easy to use, you could also consider Photoshop or Lightroom. When it comes to luxury in Vietnam, despite the fact that there are plenty of luxury hotels and homes for sale, none is really luxurious; we're talking about class and comfort right here. The latest luxury resort in town, Residence Beach Resort, has been designed by famous French architect, Jacques Garcia. It is situated in Vung Tau on the picturesque resort island of 2012 NBA Draft is nearly a month away and the Bucks may not have an answer yet for the two biggest needs on the team. What do you see as the glaring weaknesses right now on the Bucks? There's clearly a need for shooting and defense in Milwaukee, as the Bucks finished 27th in the NBA in field goal shooting and 30th in points allowed per game. This is a great time to get a young player, and the draft offers a wealth of talent on the wing, including prospects like Kentucky's Willie Cauley-Stein and Arizona's Stanley Johnson, two proven shot-blockers who would offer solid defense to a team that struggled with the glass this year. There's also the possibility of a European point guard with some point guard skills in Nikola Mirotic, a smooth scorer who could bring some much-needed depth and toughness to Milwaukee's bench. The Bucks may just have to wait to see what comes to them in the 2012 NBA Draft. Tyson Chandler -- Acquired by Milwaukee on Jan. 8, 2011 Player: Forward/Center Position: Small Forward/Center Numbers: 5/7/11 Stats: All stats are from NBA.com Strengths: If I had to sum up his game in one sentence, I would say that he's a solid, well-rounded player. He's a good defensive rebounder and he has good size and a strong frame, but he's not a dominant rebounder or block-getter. Chandler hasn't scored much during his seven-year career but he
