The documentation mentions that it's a function, but it doesn't actually say much about it. A: It's a function because you will invoke it like this: backbone.sync(function(...) { ... }); It's also a function because it returns a function. For example: backbone.sync(); function(...) { ... } is a function so even though it is a function you don't need to wrap it in () as you can write function() { ... } When you invoke backbone.sync({ one: 1, two: 2 }) it will return you a function like this function (data, options) { return _extend(data, options); } You can then invoke it like this: var result = backbone.sync({ one: 1, two: 2 }); console.log(result); // { one: 1, two: 2 } Q: "They are not connected" error after reboot on Cisco UCS C540-24G After reboot of a Cisco UCS C540-24G with 16 SSDs, we are not able to set them, and we are getting errors like: ... SetDatastore: This feature was not supported in the previous configuration, so it is not connected ... Doing manual configuration: ... Executing Configure Command ... SetClass: This feature was not supported in the previous configuration, so it is not connected Configured all features, maybe we could get the error: ... SetDatastore: Port 1 is not connected, please connect it, or press cancel to continue with configuration. If I manually connect a host from port1 to port 4 (with the port's power on), it works and setup all hosts, and after reboot these hosts are ready to serve clients. Do you have any idea where this might 6d1f23a050
